

AUTHOR PROFILES

Xiaoqing Feng is the Director of the Institute of Intellectual Property Law & Research Center for Intangible Assets Management. He is also a Professor of Law at the China University of Political Science and Law. Dr. Feng is the Vice Chairman of the China Intellectual Property Law Society as well as a member of the Experts Commission of Works of Case Guidance, the Supreme People's Court of China. He is also an attorney-at-law of Beijing Tianchi Juntai Law Firm and arbitrator with the Beijing Arbitration Commission, the Shenzhen Arbitration Commission, and the Nanjing Arbitration Commission. Professor Feng obtained the Second National Ten Outstanding Young and Middle-aged Jurist Nomination Award (1999), and was recognized by the Ministry of Education New Century Excellent Talents Support Program in 2012. He was also awarded for his outstanding contribution as a middle and young-aged expert by the National Millions of Talent Projects in 2014. He obtained his LL.B. from Renmin University of China and his Ph.D. from Peking University. His research focuses on the theory and management of intellectual property law. Professor Feng has published many books and legal articles both in Asia, the US, and Europe. He may be contacted at: fengxiaoqingipr@sina.com

Li Wang is an attorney-at-law at ZY Partners, Beijing, P.R.C. Her practice is primarily focuses on trademark law, trademark portfolio services, including trademark enforcement advice, strategy of brand development, trademark watch service, trademark prosecution, etc. Before joining ZY Partners, Li worked in the IP practice groups of two international law firms as an intern. She was awarded an LL.M. in Intellectual Property Law from China University of Political Science and Law (CUPL) in 2017 and an LL.B. from Shandong Normal University in 2014. She is the executive editor of the Newsletter of IP, CUPL. She may be contacted at: Li.Wang@zypartners.com

Yin Liu is an Associate Professor of Huaqiao University. She is a research fellow at its Institute of Overseas Chinese Legal Affairs and Institute of East Asian Legal Culture. Yin holds a Ph.D. from Wuhan University, an LL.M. from Zhongnan Univ. of Economics and Law, and a B.A. from South Central China Univ. of Political Science and Law. She was previously a visiting scholar at Troy University (Alabama, US), Waseda University (Japan), and the Max Planck Institute for Comparative Public Law and International Law (Germany). Her research interests include conflict of laws and the law of international financial institutions. Her recent publications include: Choice of Law Governing Foreign-related Matrimonial Property Relationships in South Africa: A Commentary on Article 24 of Law of the PRC on Application of Laws to Foreign-related Civil Relations, 4 GLOBAL LAW REVIEW (2015), and A Possible Solution to China's Wealth and Brain Drain: A Perspective of International Law, 5 RESEARCH ON RULE OF LAW (2014). The author may be contacted at: carollew@hotmail.com

Yang Yu is an Associate Professor of law at the School of WTO Research and Education of Shanghai University of International Business and Economics. He is also a Research Fellow at the Shanghai Center for Global Trade and Economic Governance. Yang was awarded a Ph.D. in law from Fudan University. He also obtained a Master of Economics and a European Master in Law and Economics (jointly awarded by Bologna University, Italy, Ghent University, Belgium and Hamburg University, Germany). Dr. Yu visited the Institute of Law and Economics of Law School of Hamburg University, Max Planck Institute for Intellectual Property and Competition Law, the East-West Center (US), American University's Washington College of Law. Professor Yu is an Expert of the Enterprises' IPR Overseas Protection Assistance Center of MOFCOM, a Consultant with the Shanghai Service Base for International Trade IPR Overseas Protection, a member of the editorial board of Journal of Intellectual Property Rights. His research interests include patent-related legal and policy issues in China-US Bilateral Trade, standard-related patent issues and patent law. Professor Yu published books and articles in both English and Chinese. He may be contacted at: wtoyuyang@suiube.edu.cn

Lei Zhang is a WTO Chair Holder selected by the World Trade Organization (WTO), the Dean of the School of WTO Research and Education of Shanghai University of International Business and Economics (SUIBE), the Director of Shanghai Center for Global Trade and Economics (SC-GTEG), the Director of WTO Trade Policy Review Center, and the Deputy Chairman of the China Association of Trade in Services. He earned an LL.M. in IP (WIPO-ILO-Turin University) in 2011. In 2000, he was awarded a doctoral degree in Industrial Economics at Shanghai University of Finance and Economics. He was a visiting scholar at the WTO Secretariat, Harvard University, University of Lausanne, and Georgetown University. Currently, he is a Ph.D. candidate in International Economic Law at Maastricht University. He has been appointed as a WIPO arbitrator, UNCTAD Virtual Institute coordinator, Asia-Pacific Research, Training Network on Trade (ARTNeT) focal point, and many other academic organizations. He may be contacted at: wtochair@163.com

Yan Wang is an Associate Professor at Guangdong University of Foreign Studies School of English for International Business, China. Wang secured her Ph.D. from Renmin University of China, and obtained an LL.M and an LL.B from Warwick University and Nanjing University, respectively. Her research interest focuses primarily on international trade law. Yan has published a couple of articles in academic journals in mainland China. Her recent articles are: The Rule Contestation in ISDS Reform between US and EU <in Chinese>, 2 GLOBAL LAW REVIEW (2017); The Power of Discourse and Export of Legal Norms in FTA Negotiation <in Chinese>, 1 POLITICAL SCIENCE AND LAW (2017); The Analysis of “Rule-based” and “Policy-based” Regional Trade Governance <in Chinese>, 2 LAW AND BUSINESS RESEARCH (2016). She may be contacted at: swallow\_wang79@163.com

Yong-Shik Lee is Director of the Law and Development Institute and Distinguished Scholar in Residence and Adjunct Professor at Emory University. He graduated in economics with academic distinction from the University of California at Berkeley and studied law at the University of Cambridge (Ph.D.). Professor

Lee has over sixty scholarly publications in the areas of international trade law and economic development, comparative law, and international commercial arbitration. In recent, he has focused on the impact that domestic and international legal systems, including the legal framework for international trade, has on economic development. He has also developed the concept of microtrade, a new system of international trade designed to alleviate populations of the least-developed countries of extreme poverty. Dr. Lee has recently co-authored and edited a treatise on microtrade, such as MICROTRADE: A NEW SYSTEM OF INTERNATIONAL TRADING SYSTEM WITH VOLUNTEERISM TOWARDS POVERTY ELIMINATION (Routledge, 2013). He is currently an associate editor of the JOURNAL OF WORLD TRADE and the founding editor-in-chief of the LAW AND DEVELOPMENT REVIEW. He may be contacted at: yslee@lawanddevelopment.net

Hongling Ning is a Ph.D. candidate of international economic law at Wuhan University, China, as well as guest researcher at the Max Planck Institute for Comparative Public Law and International Law (Heidelberg). She obtained her LL.B. and LL.M. in Chinese Law from Southwest Jiaotong University (“SWJTU”). Hongling is a licensed lawyer in mainland China. She may be contacted at: 2015101060085@whu.edu.cn

Tong Qi is a Professor in the Law School of Wuhan University and the Executive Director of Centre of Wuhan University Oversea Investment Law. Professor Qi completed his Ph.D. at Wuhan University in 2003. He has been a professor of international law there since 2012. He visited the University van Amsterdam in 2006 as a post-doctoral researcher for a year. In 2016, Dr. Qi pursued research at the Erasmus University Rotterdam as a senior visiting scholar and managed a Joint Research Project funded by The Royal Netherlands Academy of Arts and Sciences. He was invited by the US Department of State to join its International Visiting Leadership Program for investment law. Dr. Qi was also engaged in North East Asia Forum as a Research Fellow of International Law. Professor Qi has collaborated with China’s Judicial and Arbitral institutions and was employed as a Specialist Expert of China Foreign-Related Commercial & Maritime Trial of the Supreme People’s Court in 2015. He has published a several books and authored over 80 articles in both Chinese and English. In recent, he is focusing on dispute settlement under the WTO law and International Investment Law. He may be contacted at: fxyqt@whu.edu.cn

Ji Hee Suh is a member of the California and Wisconsin bar. She is practicing Energy and Environmental law. Ji Hee studied at the University of Wisconsin-Madison Law School and earned her J.D. in 2016. She also majored in B.S. Geology at the University of British Columbia, and worked as a geological research analyst for three years before attending law school. As a Korean-born Canadian citizen working in the US, she maintains a broad scope of international and comparative law in research and practice. Her main interest lies in global warming and environmental change in China specifically, and in East Asia in general. In recent, Ji Hee is interested in the potential impact of China's new environmental stance and regulations on American investment trend in China. She may be contacted at: suh23@wisc.edu

John Riley is an Assistant Professor of Law at Sogang University School of Law, Seoul, Korea. Professor Riley currently teaches US law and International Financial Markets. His research interests include citizenship and nationality law, international trade law, and comparative law. Prior to joining Sogang University, Professor Riley worked as an Assistant Professor of Law at Dongguk University College of Law, where he taught international trade law, international business transactions, negotiation, and various US law classes to undergraduate and graduate students. Professor Riley is a member of the Pennsylvania Bar and has advised clients in civil litigation, estate planning, tax law, real estate law and immigration law. Professor Riley has studied law in the US (University of Pittsburgh: JD) and Korea (Seoul National University & Yonsei University). John holds an undergraduate degree in Piano Performance from Ithaca College (New York). He may be contacted at: johnriley007@gmail.com